18 STATEMENT OF FACTS

19 The statement of facts and the facts discussed in the memorandum of points and 20 authorities, are strictly for the purposes of these motions and are not to be considered 21 admissions by the defendant, Marco Corrado. Mr. Corrado reserves the right to contradict, 22 explain, amplify, or otherwise discuss any of the facts mentioned here at a pre-trial motion 23 hearing or trial.

24 On June 19, 2008, Mr. Corrado was charged along with three other co-defendants in a 25 two count indictment charging conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance, over 50 grams 26 of methamphetamine, and possession with the intent to distribute a controlled substance, over 27 50 grams of methamphetamine. Mr. Corrado was arrested on June 4, 2008, as he was 28 returning back to the United States across the border in San Ysidro.

Mr. Corrado is a 39-year-old life-long resident of San Diego, where he grew up and 1 did all his schooling. He has been married for five years to his wife Cynthia, and has been 2 working in the construction field.

3 The offense is alleged to have occurred in April, 2007, pursuant to a lengthy 4 government investigation. It is therefore imagined that there will be a substantial amount of 5 discovery considering the nature of the case, the length of the investigation and the number 6 of defendants, and the defense has not yet been notified that it can begin the process of 7 ordering discovery which will likely consist of tapes, transcripts, recordings, documents and 8 reports.

9 II.

10 MOTION TO COMPEL FURTHER DISCOVERY

11 Mr. Corrado requests the following discovery pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(b)(4) 12 and 16:

13 (1) all written and oral statements made by Mr. Corrado. This request includes, but is 14 not limited to, any rough notes, records, reports, transcripts or other documents in which 15 statements of Mr. Corrado are contained. It also includes the substance of any oral 16 statements which the government intends to introduce at trial. These are all discoverable 17 under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(A) and (B) and Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963). Mr.
18 Corrado also requests any response to any Miranda warnings which may have been given to 19 him. See United States v. McElroy, 697 F.2d 459 (2d Cir. 1982);

20 (2) all documents, statements, agents' reports, and tangible evidence favorable to Mr.
21 Corrado on the issue of guilt or punishment and/or which affects the credibility of the 22 government's case. This evidence must be produced pursuant to Brady v. Maryland, 373 23 U.S. 83, 87 (1963), and United States v. Agurs, 427 U.S. 97 (1976);

24 (3) all evidence, documents, records of judgments and convictions, photographs and 25 tangible evidence, and information pertaining to any prior arrests and convictions or prior 26 bad acts. Evidence of prior record is available under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(D). Evidence 27 of prior similar acts is discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(E) and Fed. R. Evid.
28

1 404(b) and 609. Mr. Corrado specifically requests reasonable notice pursuant to Fed. R. Evid 2 404(b) of at least four weeks prior to trial, of any evidence the government intends to 3 introduce at trial under this rule;

4 (4) all evidence seized as a result of any search, either warrantless or with a warrant, 5 in this case. He also specifically requests copies of all photographs, videotapes or recordings 6 made in this case. This is available under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(E);

7 (5) all arrest reports, investigator's notes, memos from arresting officers, sworn 8 statements and prosecution reports pertaining to Mr. Corrado, including any copies of any 9 applications for arrest warrants issued in this case, including any affidavits in support, and 10 any warrants issued thereon. These are available under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(E) and Fed.
11 R. Crim. P. 26.2 and 12(I);

12 (6) the personnel file of the interviewing agent(s) containing any complaints of 13 assaults, abuse of discretion and authority and/or false arrest. Pitchess v. Superior Court, 11 14 Cal. 3d. 531, 539 (1974). In addition, the defense requests that the prosecutor examine the 15 personnel files of all testifying agents, and turn over Brady and Giglio material reasonably in 16 advance of trial. United States v. Henthorn, 931 F.2d 29, 30-31(9th Cir. 1991). If the 17 prosecutor is unsure as to whether the files contain Brady or Giglio material, the files should 18 be submitted to the Court, in camera. Id. The prosecution should bear in mind that there 19 exists an affirmative duty on the part of the government to examine the files. Id.;

20 (7) any and all statements made by any other charged or uncharged co-participants.
21 The defense is entitled to this evidence because it is material to preparation for the 22 defendant's case and potentially Brady material. Also, insofar as such statements may be 23 introduced, they are discoverable. Fed. R. Crim. 16(a)(1)(E) and Brady. This evidence must 24 be produced pursuant to Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963), and United States v. Agurs, 25 427 U.S. 97 (1976);

26 (8) Mr. Corrado requests copies of any and all audio/video tape recordings made by 27 the agents in this case and any and all transcripts, including taped recordings of any 28

1 conversations of any of the agents involved in this case. This evidence is available under 2 Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(E);

3 (9) Mr. Corrado specifically requests the name and last known address of each 4 prospective government witness. See United States v. Napue, 834 F.2d 1311 (7th Cir.
5 1987); United States v. Tucker, 716 F.2d 583 (9th Cir. 1983) (failure to interview
6 government witnesses by counsel is ineffective); United States v. Cook, 608 F.2d 1175, 1181 7 (9th Cir. 1979) (defense has equal right to talk to witnesses).

8 (10) all other documents and tangible objects, including photographs, books, papers, 9 documents, photographs, or building or places or copies of portions thereof which are 10 material to Mr. Corrado's defense or intended for use in the government's case-in-chief or 11 were obtained from or belong to Mr. Corrado. Rule 16(a)(1)(E);

12 (11) all results or reports of scientific tests or experiments, or copies of which are 13 within the possession, control, or custody of the government or which are known or become 14 known to the attorney for the government, that are material to the preparation of the defense, 15 including the opinions, analysis and conclusions of experts consulted by law enforcement 16 including computer and accounting specialists in the instant case. These must be disclosed, 17 once a request is made, even though obtained by the government later, pursuant to 18 Fed.R.Crim.Pro. 16(a)(1)(F) and (G).

19 (12) any express or implicit promise, understanding, offer of immunity, of past, 20 present, or future compensation, agreement to execute a voluntary return rather than 21 deportation or any other kind of agreement or understanding between any prospective 22 government witness and the government (federal, state and local), including any implicit 23 understanding relating to criminal or civil income tax liability. United States v. Shaffer, 789 24 F.2d 682 (9th Cir. 1986); United States v. Risken, 788 F. 2d 1361 (8th Cir. 1986); United 25 States v. Luc Levasseur, 826 F.2d 158 (1st Cir. 1987);

26 (13) any discussion with a potential witness about or advice concerning any 27 contemplated prosecution, or any possible plea bargain, even if no bargain was made, or the 28

1 advice not followed. Brown v. Duggen, 831 F.2d 1546, 1558 (11th Cir. 1986) (evidence that 2 witness sought plea bargain is to be disclosed, even if no deal struck); Haber v. Wainwright, 3 756 F.2d 1520, 1524 (11th Cir. 1985);

4 (14) any evidence that any prospective government witness has engaged in any 5 criminal act whether or not resulting in a conviction. See Rule 608(b), Federal Rules of 6 Evidence and Brady;

7 (15) any evidence that any prospective witness is under investigation by federal, state 8 or local authorities for any criminal conduct. United States v. Chitty, 760 F.2d 425 (2d Cir.), 9 cert. denied, 474 U.S. 945 (1985); and,

10 (16) any evidence, including any medical or psychiatric report or evaluation, tending 11 to show that any prospective witness' ability to perceive, remember, communicate, or tell the 12 truth is impaired; and any evidence that a witness has ever used narcotics or other controlled 13 substance, or has ever been an alcoholic. United States v. Strifler, 851 F.2d 1197 (9th Cir.
14 July 11, 1988); Chavis v. North Carolina, 637 F.2d 213, 224 (4th Cir. 1980);

15 (17) the name and last known address of every witness to the crime or crimes charged 16 (or any of the overt acts committed in furtherance thereof) who will not be called as a 17 government witness. United States v. Cadet, 727 F.2d 1469 (9th Cir. 1984);

18 (18) the name of any witness who made an arguably favorable statement concerning 19 the defendant or who could not identify her or who was unsure of his identity, or 20 participation in the crime charged. Jackson v. Wainwright, 390 F.2d 288 (5th Cir. 1968); 21 Chavis v. North Carolina, 637 F.2d 213, 223 (4th Cir. 1980); James v. Jago, 575 F.2d 1164, 22 1168 (6th Cir. 1978); Hudson v. Blackburn, 601 F.2d 785 (5th Cir. 1975);

23 (19) Mr. Corrado requests a transcript of the grand jury testimony and rough notes of 24 all witnesses expected to testify at the motion hearing or at trial. This evidence is 25 discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(I) and 26 and will be requested.

26 (20) Jencks Act Material. The defense requests all material to which defendant is 27 entitled pursuant to the Jencks Act, 18 U.S.C. § 3500, reasonably in advance of trial. A 28

1 verbal acknowledgment that "rough" notes constitute an accurate account of the witness' 2 interview is sufficient for the report or notes to qualify as a statement under §3500(e)(1).
3 Campbell v. United States, 373 U.S. 487, 490-92 (1963). In United States v. Boshell, 952
4 F.2d 1101 (9th Cir. 1991), the Ninth Circuit held that when an agent goes over interview 5 notes with the subject of the interview the notes are then subject to the Jencks Act. The 6 defense requests pre-trial production of Jencks material to expedite cross-examination and to 7 avoid lengthy recesses during the pre-trial motions hearings or trial.

8 Disclosure, as it becomes known to the government, of all material currently in its 9 possession that it contemplates using in any phase of the trial. This means as direct evidence 10 in its case in chief, as impeachment evidence in the course of cross examination, or in 11 rebuttal. The Court is requested to order a deadline barring any use, for any purpose at trial, 12 of materials not reasonably disclosed in advance of trial. Drawing a bright line for the 13 government will not only encourage compliance, but will greatly reduce the prospect for 14 disruptive discovery disputes in the course of trial. And full discovery will make for more 15 informed and focused counsel on both sides of the courtroom, thus making for a more orderly 16 trial. Finally, a discovery order with teeth to it will impress upon the government its 17 obligation to undertake a diligent search for Brady material.

18 This Court plainly has the authority to order the government to provide discovery by a 19 certain date, and bar the use of any evidence not disclosed after that date. This authority is 20 expressly conferred under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(d)(2), and has been upheld in a number of 21 cases, even against defendants. See, e.g. Taylor v. Illinois, 484 U.S. 400, 108 S. Ct. 646 22 (1988) (exclusion of surprise defense witness for discovery violation does not violate 23 defendants rights); United States v. Aceves-Rosales, 832 F.2d 1155 (9th Cir. 1987) (not 24 abuse of discretion to bar defense use of evidence discovered and subpoenaed the day before 25 trial but not disclosed until after government had rested in violation of Rule 16) and United 26 States v. Burgess, 791 F.2d 676 (9th Cir. 1986) (government barred from making any use, 27 including use for impeachment, of non-disclosed inculpatory statement made to DEA agent).
28

1 The Court's authority to enforce such orders against the government by excluding evidence is 2 beyond dispute. United States v. Roybal, 566 F.2d 1109, 1110-11 (9th Cir. 1977); see also 3 United States v. Gatto, 763 F.2d 1040, 1046-47 (9th Cir. 1985) (after citing authority to 4 exclude evidence under Rule 16(d)(2), the "only question" was whether the evidence not 5 produced was discoverable under former Rule 16(a)(1)(C) although in possession of state 6 law enforcement); and United States v. Schwartz, 857 F.2d 655 (9th Cir. 1988) (question 7 was whether government violated discovery order, thus warranting the sanction).

8 A discovery schedule, such as a disclosure deadline, is authorized by Rule 16(d)(2), 9 and will serve to avoid delay, conserve scarce judicial resources, prevent surprise, and further 10 the search for truth at trial. These purposes are central objectives of the discovery process.
11 See Fed. R. Crim. P. 16, advisory committee note, 1974 amendments, and H.R. Report No.
12 247, 94th Cong., 1st Sess. 13 (1975). Therefore, the Court should impose a discovery 13 schedule and bar the introduction of evidence not disclosed by that date.

14 The Court has wide authority to regulate the discovery process under Fed. R. Crim. P.
15 16(d)(2). It may "specify the time, place and manner of making the discovery and inspection 16 and may prescribe such terms and conditions as are just." Id. This authority in turn springs 17 from Rule 16(a)(1)(A)-(E) which requires the government to disclose three broad categories 18 of evidence: the defendants statements, 16(a)(1)(A) and (B); evidence material to the 19 preparation of the defense, 16(a)(1)(E); or evidence which the government intends to 20 introduce in its case in chief, 16(a)(1)(E). In addition, the Fifth Amendment to the 21 Constitution requires the government to look for and disclose exculpatory information 22 favorable to the accused on the issue of guilt or innocence, or in mitigation of sentence.
23 Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83, 83 S. Ct. 1194 (1963).

24 Because the Court has the power to order production under Rule 16 and under Brady, 25 it has the ancillary supervisory power to insure that the rights accorded under the rule and the 26 constitution be enforced "when there is a clear basis in law or fact for doing so." United 27 States v. Jennings, 960 F.2d 1488, 1491 (9th Cir. 1992). See also United States v. Gatto, 763 28

1 F.2d 1040 (9th Cir. 1985) (relied on in Jennings) and United States v. Dominguez-Villa, 954
2 F.2d 562 (9th Cir. 1992) (authority to compel government to review personnel files, but no 3 authority to compel non-prosecution lawyers or agency department heads to do it). The 4 materials requested here are all plainly available, if they exist, under either Rule 16 or the 5 Brady line of cases.

6 Fed. R. Crim P. 16(a)(1)(E) requires the government to allow the defense to "inspect 7 and copy or photograph" evidence which is either material, will be introduced at trial, or 8 which was obtained from, or belonged to the defendant. As noted, Rule 16(d)(2) grants this 9 Court full discretionary, supervisory power over "the time, place and manner of making the 10 discovery or inspection" referred to in 16(a)(1)(E), and authorizes the Court to "prescribe 11 such terms and conditions as are just" in that regard. This includes the obligation of the 12 government to promptly search its files, to avoid last minute disclosure or the suppression of 13 evidence (advertent or inadvertently). The 1966 Advisory Notes accompanying the initial 14 appearance of the rule (then designated as 16(b)) speak of the need to "define and limit the 15 scope of the government's obligation to search its files while meeting the legitimate needs 16 of the defendant." (emphasis added) And in 1974 the rule was expanded and redesignated in 17 its current form. In addition to making discovery mandatory when the defendant 18 demonstrated that the materials would be material, the Committee noted that 19 Limiting the rule to situations in which the defendant can show that the evidence is 20 material seems unwise. It may be difficult for a defendant to make this showing if she 21 does not know what the evidence is. For this reason, subdivision (a)(1)(C) also contains language to compel disclosure if the government intends to use the property as evidence at trial or if the property was obtained from or belongs to the defendant.

22 1974 Advisory Notes to Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(C). In this case, however, the defense has 23 shown, as best it can at this juncture, what the evidence is, and what it's looking for.
24 Determining if the materials exist and locating them is the government's responsibility.

25 The government's response that it has looked and does not have information or 26 evidence is almost as important as the disclosure of the material. The significance of the 27 request-response process was underscored in United States v. Bagley, 473 U.S. 667, 105 28

1 S.Ct. 3375, 87 L.Ed.2d 481 (1985), where the Supreme Court observed:

2 The Government notes [in its brief] that an incomplete response to a specific request 3 [from the defense for Brady material] not only deprives the defense of certain 4 evidence, but also has the effect of representing to the defense that the evidence does 5 not exist. In reliance on this misleading representation, the defense might abandon 6 lines of independent investigation, defenses, or trial strategies that it otherwise would 7 have pursued.

8 We agree that the prosecutor's failure to respond fully to a Brady request may 9 impair the adversary process in this manner. And the more specifically the defense 10 requests certain evidence, thus putting the prosecutor on notice of its value, the more 11 reasonable it is for the defense to assume from the nondisclosure that the evidence 12 does not exist, and to make pretrial and trial decisions on the basis of this assumption.

13 Bagley, 105 S. Ct. at 3384. Thus defendants have a right to rely upon the government to 14 fulfill its obligation to produce Brady material, particularly where the material has been 15 specifically requested. That obligation is not contingent on whether the defense is astute 16 enough, or has sufficient resources to determine the material exists before it is requested, or 17 locate it for the government to retrieve. The government is affirmatively obligated to report 18 any exculpatory evidence in its possession, and is constructively charged with knowledge of 19 what it possesses.

20 Plainly, the government is obligated to inform the defense of exculpatory evidence 21 even absent a request. Brown v. Borg, 951 F.2d 1011, 1015 (9th Cir. 1991) (failure to 22 disclose murder victim's property had not been stolen in course of murder required reversal 23 where robbery was urged by prosecutor as motive). This obligation extends to any evidence 24 in the possession of the prosecutor or the prosecuting federal agencies. United States v.
25 Bryan, 868 F.2d 1032 (9th Cir. 1989). The point is important in a case, such as this one, 26 where more than one agency is involved, and the scope of the law enforcement activity is 27 broad. This case involves at least the FBI, and DEA agents. It may also involve local law 28 enforcement districts.

29 In fact, the facts of Bryan are analogous. Bryan sought discovery of out-of-district 30 documents in possession of various federal agencies that had participated in the investigation 31 of his nationwide distribution of questionable tax shelters. She was charged with 20 counts 32 of mail fraud. The district court agreed with Bryan that she was entitled to some of the 1 materials she described in his discovery request under Brady and Fed. R. Crim. P.

 2 16(a)(1)(C), but limited the discovery to material in the District of Oregon. The government 3 argued that it was not obligated to disclose any evidence not subjectively known to, and in 4 the possession of the prosecutor. 868 F.2d 1033-1036. The government lost.

5 Instead, Bryan ruled that any evidence in the possession of any federal agency 6 *involved in the investigation of the defendant was known to and in the possession of the 7 prosecutor. Specifically, the court said:

8 the scope of the government's obligation under Rule 16(a)(1)(C) should turn on the 9 extent to which the prosecutor has knowledge of and access to the documents sought 10 by the defendant in each case. the prosecutor will be deemed to have knowledge of 11 and access to anything in the possession, custody or control of any federal agency 12 participating in the same investigation of the defendant. ... As with Rule 16(a)(1)(C)'s definition of government, we see no reason why the prosecutor's obligation under Brady should stop at the border of the district. If a federal prosecutor has knowledge of and access to exculpatory information as defined in Brady and its progeny ... then the prosecutor must disclose it to the defense.

13 Bryan, 868 F.2d 1036-1037. In this case there is no question but that allegations of drug 14 trafficking has attracted the attention of the government on many levels, and in many places.
 15 The government must be encouraged to determine what it knows about this case and disclose 16 all that it is required to under Rule 16 and Brady as promptly as possible.

17 By requiring the prosecutor to assist the defense in making its case, the Brady rule 18 represents a limited departure from a pure adversary model. The Court has 19 recognized, however, that the prosecutor's role transcends that of an adversary: She is 20 the representative not of an ordinary party to a controversy, but of a sovereignty whose interest in a criminal prosecution is not that it shall win a case, but that justice shall be done.

21 Bagley, 105 S. Ct. 3380, n. 6, quoting Berger v. United States, 295 U.S. 78, 88, 55 S. Ct. 629, 22 633, 79 L. Ed. 1314 (1935) and citing Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. at 87-88, 83 S. Ct. at 23 1196-1197. Mere ignorance of the material is no excuse.¹ This is why the Supreme Court in 24 Bagley replaced the no-request, general-request, and specific-request standard with the 25 26 ¹ "Accordingly, when exculpatory evidence is withheld, attention focuses on its effect on 27 the defendant's right to due process; the prosecutor's intentions are irrelevant." Brown v.

 28 Borg, 951 F.2d 1015, citing United States v. Agurs, 427 U.S. 97, 110, 96 S. Ct. 2392, 2400, 49 L. Ed.2d 342 (1976) and Thomas v. Cardwell, 626 F.2d 1375, 1382 n.24 (9th Cir. 1980).

1 materiality analysis used in Strickland v. Washington, 446 U.S. 668, 104 S. Ct. 2052, 80 L.
 2 Ed.2d 674 (1984). As described in Bagley, the Strickland analysis focuses on the harm 3 caused by the failure to report the exculpatory evidence, rather than the relative faults of 4 counsel for either not directing the government properly to the evidence, or in the alternative, 5 for the government to fail to provide the information despite a specific request.²

6 Accordingly, Mr. Corrado requests that the court order discovery as outlined above, 7 and as further discussed in the discovery motions filed by co-defendants, joined in by Mr.
 8 Corrado. The court is respectfully requested to order the government to affirmatively search 9 for all subject material, and disclose it by a reasonable date certain, or as soon as it becomes 10 aware of such material. The Court is also requested to establish a date beyond which the 11 government cannot introduce nondisclosed evidence absent some extraordinary showing.

12 13 III.

14 THIS COURT SHOULD ORDER THE GOVERNMENT TO REVEAL 15 THE IDENTITY OF THE CONFIDENTIAL INFORMANTS.

16 It is well established that where an informant's testimony may be "relevant and helpful 17 to the defense of an accused" his identity must be disclosed. Roviaro v. United States, 353 18 U.S. 53, 60-61 (1957). Under Roviaro, there is no fixed rule with respect to disclosure of a 19 confidential informant, although four considerations are relevant: (1) the crime charged; (2) 20 the possible offenses; (3) the possible significance of the informant's testimony; and (4) other 21 relevant factors. Id. at 62-64. In a case such as this, the testimony of that informant is vital 22 to the defense. Even if the informants may not be called to testify for the government, the 23 defense may call them. Lopez-Hernandez v. United States, 394 F.2d 820 (9th Cir. 1968); 24 Velarde-Villarreal v. United States, 354 F.2d 9 (9th Cir. 1965).

 26 ² Although Bagley makes it clear that more harm flows from a specific request which is 27 improperly ignored by the government because the defendant is more likely to assume that 28 evidence does not exist when he or she specifically asks for it and the government denies that it exists.

1 A. Because the Informants Were Percipient Witnesses to, or Actively Participated 2 in, the Transactions Leading to the Commission of the Alleged Crime, the 3 Identity of the Informants Must be Revealed.

4 Here, it can be presumed that there are informants or cooperating witnesses who were 5 percipient witnesses, so under Roviaro, Velarde-Villarreal, and Lopez-Hernandez, the 6 identity and whereabouts of the individuals must be revealed.

7 B. The Government Must Produce the Confidential Informants Prior to Trial and 8 Mr. Corrado Should be Permitted to Interview Them Prior to Trial.

9 The government's obligation is not fully satisfied by merely disclosing the identity and 10 location of the confidential informants. Mr. Corrado specifically requests that the informants 11 be produced. The government has the duty to produce the informants or to show that, despite 12 reasonable efforts, it was not able to do so. United States v. Hart, 546 F.2d 798, 799 (9th Cir.
 13 1976) cert. denied sub nom., Robles v. United States, 429 U.S. 1120 (1977).

14 Mr. Corrado respectfully requests that the Court permit defense counsel to question 15 the informants before trial. Mr. Corrado should also be permitted to interview the informants 16 well in advance of trial. See United States v. Hernandez, 608 F.2d 741 (9th Cir. 1979); 17 United States v. Bower, 575 F.2d 499 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 439 U.S. 983 (1978).

18 In Callahan v. United States, 371 F.2d 658 (9th Cir. 1967), the court held that both the 19 defense and the prosecution had the right to interview witnesses before trial, and that 20 exceptions to such rules were justifiable only by the clearest and most compelling 21 circumstances. It is beyond dispute that witnesses to a crime are the property of neither the 22 prosecution nor the defense, and that both sides have an equal right and should have and 23 equal opportunity to interview them.

24 For the reasons cited above, the government is required to disclose the identity of all 25 cooperating witnesses and their whereabouts, and to make them available for the defense.
 26 Failure to do so would require dismissal of the case.

27 C. In Camera Hearing.

28 This Court has considerable discretion in deciding whether an in camera hearing is necessary in determining when the government must release the informant's name and

1 whereabouts to the defense. See, e.g., United States v. Ordonez, 722 F.2d 530, 540-41 (9th
2 Cir. 1983); United States v. Rawlinson, 487 F.2d 5, 7-8 n.4 (9th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 415
3 U.S. 984 (1974). The Rawlinson court held that an in camera hearing was an appropriate 4 means for determining whether the informant's identity and testimony would be relevant and 5 helpful to the defense. While the court in United States v. Anderson, 509 F.2d 724 (9th Cir.
6 1974), cert. denied, 420 U.S. 910 (1975), refused to establish a fixed rule that requires 7 disclosure of an informant's identity when probable cause is at issue, it did approve the 8 holding of an in camera hearing to which the defense counsel, but not the defendant, is 9 admitted.

10 In Ordonez, the court stated that "[t]o insure that the informer is subject to a vigorous 11 or searching examination, some trial courts have permitted the defense counsel to submit a 12 set of questions to be propounded by the court." 722 F.2d at 541 (citations omitted). Further, 13 the court held that the "procedure selected by the trial court should provide a substantial 14 equivalent to the rights available to a criminal defendant under the Fifth and Sixth 15 Amendments." 722 F.2d at 540-41.

16 Thus, the identity of the informants should be revealed well in advance of trial, or in 17 the alternative, this Court should conduct an in camera hearing and allow defense counsel to 18 participate in order to determine whether the informants' testimony is helpful and material to 19 the defense.

20 Mr. Corrado requests the opportunity to interview the government informants 21 sufficiently in advance of trial so that any further investigation that may be necessary may be 22 accomplished without interrupting the trial itself.

23 D. Mr. Corrado is Entitled to Information Regarding The Confidential Informants.

24 With respect to any informant or witness that the government intends to rely upon at 25 trial, Mr. Corrado requests disclosure of the following impeaching information.

26 1) Any and all records and information revealing prior felony convictions, convictions 27 for a crime involving false statements or dishonesty, or juvenile adjudications attributed to 28

1 the informant, including but not limited to relevant "rap sheets." See United States v.
2 Alvarez-Lopez, 559 F.2d 1155 (9th Cir. 1977); Fed. R. Evid. 609.

3 2) Any and all records and information revealing prior misconduct or bad acts 4 attributed to the informant, including, but not limited to, any acts of misconduct conducted by 5 them. Fed. R. Evid. 608(b)(3); Weinstein's Evidence 608[5] at 608-25 (1976).

6 3) Any and all consideration or promises of consideration given to the informant or 7 expected or hoped for by them. By "consideration," Mr. Corrado refers to absolutely 8 anything, whether bargained for or not, which arguably could be of value or use to her or to 9 persons of concern to them. This request includes, but is not limited to formal or informal 10 and direct or indirect leniency, favorable treatment or recommendations, or other assistance 11 with respect to any pending or potential criminal, parole, probation, pardon, clemency, civil, 12 tax court, Internal Revenue Service, Court of Claims, administrative, or other dispute with 13 the United States. See, e.g., Guam v. De la Rosa, 644 F.2d 1257, 1259 (9th Cir. 1980) 14 (testimony secured by promise not to prosecute in exchange for cooperation).

15 "Consideration" also encompasses any favorable treatment or recommendations with 16 respect to criminal, civil or tax immunity grants, relief from forfeiture, payments of money, 17 permission to keep fruits of criminal activity including cash, vehicles, aircraft, rewards or 18 fees, witness fees and special witness fees, provisions of food, clothing, shelter, 19 transportation, legal services or other benefits, placement in a "witness protection program," 20 and anything else that arguably could reveal an interest, motive, or bias in them in favor of 21 the government or against the defense, or which could act as an inducement to testify or to 22 color testimony. See Bagley v. Lumpkin, 719 F.2d at 1462-64; United States v. Mayer, 556
23 F.2d 245, 248 (5th Cir. 1977); United States v. Partin, 493 F.2d 750, 757 (5th Cir. 1974); 24 United States v. Garza, 574 F.2d 298, 301-02 (5th Cir. 1978).

25 4) Any and all threats, express or implied, direct or indirect, or other coercion made or 26 directed against the informant, criminal prosecutions, investigations, or potential 27 prosecutions pending, or which could be brought against them, any probationary, parole, 28

1 deferred prosecution, or custodial status of the witness and any civil, tax court, court of 2 claims, administrative, or other pending or potential legal disputes or transactions with the 3 government or over which the government has a real, apparent, or perceived influence. See 4 Davis v. Alaska, 415 U.S. 308 (1974); United States v. Alvarez-Lopez, 559 F.2d 1155 (9th 5 Cir. 1977); United States v. Sutton, 542 F.2d 1239 (4th Cir. 1976).

6 5) The existence and identification of each occasion on which the informant has 7 testified before the court, grand jury, or other tribunal or body in connection with this or 8 other similar cases. See Alvarez-Lopez, 559 F.2d at 1155; Johnson v. Brewer, 521 F.2d 556 9 (8th Cir. 1975).

10 6) Any and all records and information which arguably could be helpful or useful to 11 the defense in impeaching or otherwise detracting from the probative force of the 12 government's evidence or which arguably could lead to such records or such information.
13 This request includes any evidence tending to show the narcotic habits of the informant at the 14 time of relevant events, see, e.g., United States v. Bernard, 625 F.2d 854, 858-59 (9th Cir.
15 1980), and the informant's personal dislike of the defendant. See Guam v. De la Rosa, 644 16 F.2d 1257 (9th Cir. 1980); United States v. Haggett, 438 F.2d 396 (2d Cir. 1969), cert.
17 denied, 402 U.S. 946 (1971).

18 7) The names and criminal numbers of any and all other criminal cases, state or 19 federal, in which the informant has been involved either as informant or as defendant. Any 20 prior criminal conduct on the part of the informant either as informant or as a defendant is 21 relevant in establishing a possible defense of entrapment.

22 Mr. Corrado is making these multiple requests because, in order to properly prepare a 23 defense in this matter, it is important that the defense be aware of all information related to 24 the informants' credibility and background. Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972); 25 United States v. Ray, 731 F.2d 1361 (9th Cir. 1984).

1 IV.

2 REQUEST FOR LEAVE TO FILE FURTHER MOTIONS

3 Mr. Corrado requests that he be allowed time to file additional motions as may 4 become necessary and as discovery is disclosed and reviewed.
